Bay nearly loses gas service; underwater break blamed

BY ED LEPOMA

Customers who use natural gas in Bay St. Louis were "very close" to losing service after a rupture was discovered Saturday in the underwater pipeline that serves as the city's sole source of gas.

Only Alcan Cable, the city's largest user of natural gas, experienced any kind of service cutoff. Bay St. Louis public schools and Waveland Elementary School, which were closed Monday for the Martin Luther King holiday, got Tuesday and Wednesday off, as a precaution.

Public Works Director Ronnie Vanney was on vacation, but was notified, and at the center of operations on Monday.

Vanney said his assistant, Buddy Zimmerman, city public works crews, and workers with Koch Gateway Pipeline Co. of Houston, Tex., handled the situation expertly from the outset.

At one point, Vanney said, "We were very, very close to a complete shutdown."

Some 1,650 residential and business customers who use natural gas in Bay St. Louis and another 500 in Henderson Point had their gas cut off last year when pressure dropped dangerously.

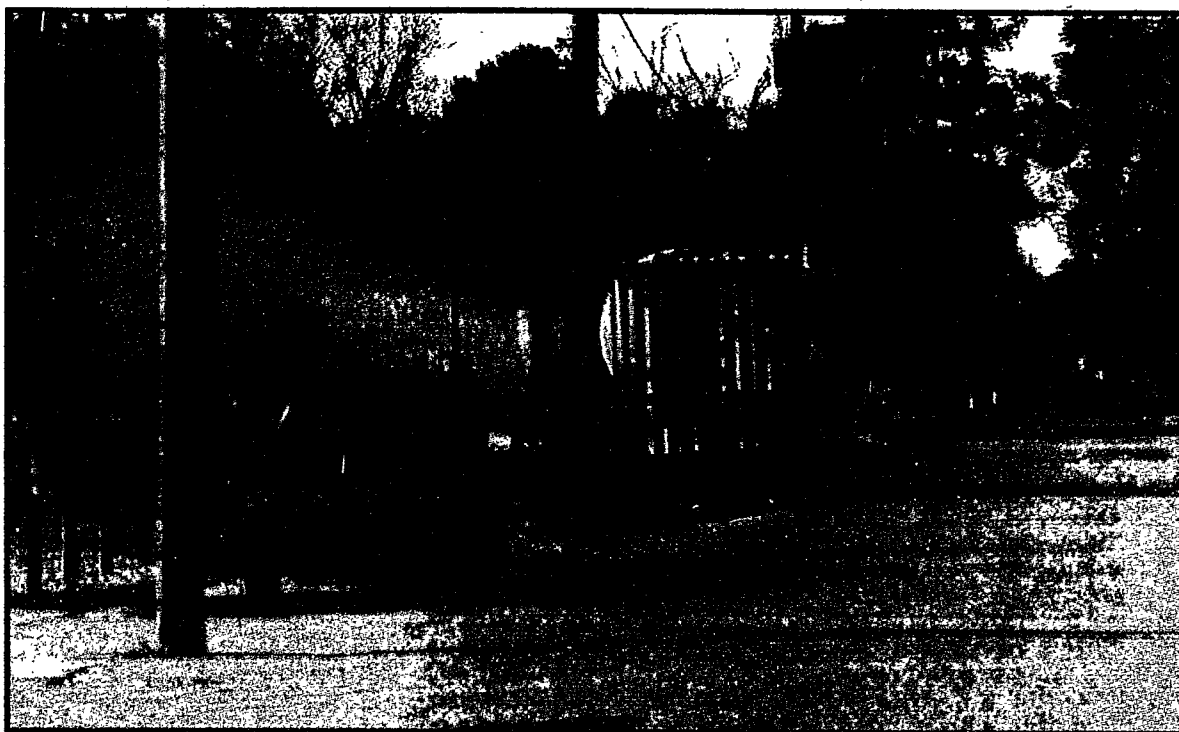

Customers, at that time, were without gas for about a day and a half. Service was restored after it was discovered that a Koch worker had inadvertently turned off a safety valve at a supply site in Pass Christian.

This time, the problem was more apparent—a hole in a four-inch pipeline that comes out of Pass Christian under the Mississippi Sound and comes into Bay St. Louis near the foot of Ulman Avenue.

Vanney gave this chronological order of events:

A boater noticed a gas odor and bubbling water in the channel in the bay about halfway between the drawspans of the Bay's vehicle and railroad bridges early Saturday morning, and notified the U.S. Coast Guard.

Gas hookup

Officials of Koch Gateway Pipeline Co. of Houston, Tex., devised a scheme to provide gas service to Bay St. Louis when a break in an underwater pipeline was discovered. Koch brought in a tanker truck carrying liquid natural gas and a vaporizer truck to the city. The connection between the two was made at the city's main gas intake station (above) on Ulman Avenue, returning gas pressure to normal. (Echo staff photo by Richard Meek)

Additional campaign reports released

BY ED LEPOMA

The Hancock County Circuit Clerk's Office has released another list of candidates who have filed campaign financial reports.

The Echo, last week, asked to see a listing of those who had filed by the Jan. 10 deadline, as required by the Secretary of State. Technically, candidates can file at any time during their campaign, and those reports were not shown to the Echo.

Below is a listing of those who have filed financial reports:

Sheriff Ronnie A. Peterson filed Nov. 10, showing total campaign expenditures of $3,277, and individual contributions of $1,000.

Terrell R. "Terry" Randolph, elected Superintendent of the Hancock County School District, filed a report Jan. 16, showing total expenditures of $3,843.79, with $500 contributed by the local Republican Party.

Rodrick "Rocky" Pullman, who was elected Supervisor, District 2, reported on Dec. 12, expenditures of $2,585.77, all of his own money.

Waveland mayor approves hiring of former officer

BY RICHARD MEEK

Waveland Mayor John Mason said he fully supports police chief Jimmy Varnell's rehiring of former officer Michael Prendergast.

Prendergast, Varnell's former patrol partner, helped a firefighter burn his van allegedly for insurance money in 1988. However, both the records of Prendergast and firefighter William Field III were expunged under a "non-adjudication" legal procedure.

The two were released from probation in August of 1989, and neither have a criminal record.

Mason said Varnell contacted him before hiring Prendergast, 32, but the mayor voiced no objections.

"I said I was perfectly comfortable with the young man," Mason said. "If I knew he was out there patrolling, I would sleep a lot better."

"He's better than some of our patrolman in the past," Mason added that he thinks Prendergast is a "fine, upstanding young man."

"Everybody deserves a break," he added. "He will make us proud."

Prendergast and Field were arrested in May of 1988, and pled guilty the following month. Both were suspended from their departments.

At the time, Prendergast, who had been with the department for four years, was Varnell's partner.

"You could not find a better police officer," Varnell said. "The judge thought enough of him to give him the sentence he did."

"Legally he is free and clear of the charges. He did his time, and learned his lesson. He is much more mature now."

The chief added that Prendergast should not have to "suffer the rest of his life for a little mistake."

Varnell said Prendergast recently approached the chief about returning. Varnell said he had "no hesitation" in rehiring his former partner.

"When he left, he was one of

Kim's spa reopens

Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell reported that Kim's Health Spa has reopened.

A week ago, three women were arrested for prostitution at the spa, located on Highway 90 in Waveland.

It was originally reported that city officials had revoked the spa's business license. However, a hearing must be held before a license can be revoked.

No hearing date has been set.

Candidate for Sheriff Steve Garber also said the $4,201 he spent during his campaign was received from individual contributors. He had listed $401.40 in contributions in a Sept. 8 report.

Also in Sunday's edition, the Krewe of Kids Parade is scheduled in Bay St. Louis Saturday, Feb. 10, not Sunday, as reported.

Stevens named Social Work Director of Year

Susan S. Stevens of Waveland was recently honored as Mississippi Society for Hospital Social Work Director of the Year.

Stevens, director of social services at Hancock Medical Center since 1984, served as president of the organization in 1995 and is currently on their board.

"Susan's work performance has been consistently outstanding for the five years I have been affiliated with the hospital," said administrator Donald G. Henderson. "She is respected by the hospital medical and nursing staff, other employees and by the community as the epitome of a caring, dedicated social service director."

In her role at Hancock Medical Center, Stevens offers counseling to patients and family members with regard to adapting to illness, psychosocial functioning, discharge planning and interdisciplinary case management.

She directs them to community resources or public assistance when needed and negotiates and administers contracts with supportive agencies. She helps hundreds of residents each year by linking them with appropriate resources which can assist their particular needs.

In addition, she is chairman of the HMC Discharge Planning Committee and facilitator for the Quality Improvement Program, a management plan designed to involve all employees in improving processes in the work environment.

She also provides health care quality consulting with T. P. Williams and Associates and is a clinical faculty member for the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

She is married to Wade Stevens and has two children. She was recently appointed to the Hancock County Foster Care Review Board and served 10 years as president of the Hancock County Human Resources Agency. Stevens also volunteers with her church, Christ Episcopal, and children's school, Bay Catholic Elementary.

Library Foundation to sponsor mural

Imagine the history of Hancock County and Bay St. Louis depicted through a mosaic mural on the exterior wall of the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

And imagine having the opportunity to be a part of creating and designing this mural.

That is the next project to be undertaken by The Library Foundation of Hancock County, made possible through a partial grant from the Mississippi Arts Commission.

"By sponsoring the mosaic mural, The Library Foundation hopes to promote use of library resources and an appreciation of the culture and history of Bay St. Louis and Hancock County," said Anita D. Lamb, Foundation president.

The project, under the direction of local artist Elizabeth Veglia, will involve the entire community. Community involvement is common in most of Veglia's works. The Harbor Square Park in Gulfport, adjacent to Hancock County, the St. John Parish Hall in Gulfport, and the Bay High School fine arts wing were all team efforts, with Coastians working under Veglia's supervision.

Charles Gray, president of the Hancock County Historical Society and well known along the Gulf Coast for his knowledge of local history, will present several lectures on local culture and history. Fred Wagner, well-known Coastian architect, will present programs about local architecture and its effect on culture in this area.

Veglia will teach workshop participants how to work with the tile to create their own mosaic designs. She will then incorporate these designs into the overall theme of the mural.

After assembling the designs into appropriate relationship to each other, the mosaic will be mounted on the southern exterior (Ulman Avenue) wall of the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, adjacent to the children's area.

"The mosaic will be seen by all who enter the library," said Prima Plaque, library system director, "and we feel it will become a focal point for the community."

Persons interested in becoming involved in the project should call Mary Perkins at the library at 467-5282.

Gulf Islands National marks 25th anniversary

The 91st Congress authorized Gulf Islands National Seashore as America's 8th National Seashore on Jan. 8, 1971. For the past 25 years Gulf Islands National Seashore has preserved for public use and enjoyment coastal areas in northwest Florida and Mississippi possessing outstanding natural, historic and recreational values.

Local efforts to create Gulf Islands National Seashore began in the 1960s with community concern for preserving West Ship Island's Fort Massachusetts and Pensacola's Fort Pickens, Fort Barrancas and the Advanced Redoubt and the Spanish Battery de San Antonio. The forts needed restoration, and beach erosion threatened eventual collapse of Fort Massachusetts.

Coastal community leaders, assisted by Mississippi Congressman William Colmer and Florida Congressman Bob Sikes, worked through the later 1960s to gain Congressional approval.

Today, approximately 5 million visitors annually stop at Gulf Islands National Seashore, and it is one of the country's most visited national park areas. Gulf Islands is the largest of the 10 national seashores in the national park system.

"To recognize the 25th anniversary, the 1996 Passport to Your National Parks program will feature Gulf Islands National Seashore on the southeast regional stamp," said Superintendent Jerry Eubanks. "The cancellation ink stamp for the passport program at the National Seashore in 1996 will also have the 25th anniversary of Gulf Islands National Seashore."

The stamps and cancellation ink stamp for the Passport program will be available at the eastern national outlets at Gulf Islands National Seashore starting in April, 1996.

Park rangers will present special exhibits and programs to highlight the 25th anniversary of Gulf Islands National Seashore in 1996. A photographic exhibit depicting memories of Mississippi's barrier islands before and since the National Seashore's creation will be on display at the William M. Colmer Visitors Center in Mississippi's Davis Bayou area of the National Seashore in February.

Cold freezes blood supply

A record cold snap over much of the nation has put the freeze on volunteer blood donors, causing blood supplies throughout affected regions to dip dangerously low.

With local blood supplies already dwindling, and fewer Red Cross regions available for back-up support, officials from the Red Cross Gulf Coast Blood Services Region have issued an emergency appeal.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The talk of the town this week was the gas line leak in the pipe across the Bay that feeds the Bay St. Louis system.

We are very fortunate we had warm weather and were able to get an alternate supply of gas while the repairs were being made.

Hats are off to our Mayor Eddie Favre, the Utility, Police and Fire Departments personnel for their quick action in everything that had to be done in support of the repair of the line.

The gas supplier repaired the big break after around-the-clock work, and everything was normal on Wednesday morning around 11:30 a.m.

Koch Gateway Pipeline Company, supplier of gas to the city, got its crews to Bay St. Louis in a hurry to address the problem.

In talking with Ron Vanney, Bay St. Louis Public Works director on Wednesday, he had nothing but high praises for everyone associated with Koch Gateway Pipeline Company.

Vanney, too, was very happy with the cooperation and attitude of all city personnel during the crisis.

The gas line crisis caused students of the Bay-Waveland School District to get Tuesday and Wednesday off as a holiday.

The unexpected days off probably had some parents having to make some fast arrangements.

Anything we get usually costs a price, and probably the students will have to make up for the days before the school year ends.

The Bay St. Louis Knights of Columbus will have a big celebration Saturday night as they mark their 85th anniversary.

For an organization to be around for 85 years, it is a very long time.

All Bay St. Louis KC members and former members and their families are invited to the festivities beginning at 6 p.m. at the KC Hall located on Main Street.

Grand Knight Harvey Mitchell is hoping for a big turnout for the great celebration.

Date violence increasing

Editor's note: From time to time we receive information from readers, who, for obvious reasons, do not want their names to be known.

The following are written comments made by the mother of a teenager involved in "dating violence," and she feels the public should know about their ordeal.

The mother, whom I have spoken to, knows there are other families facing some of the same problems. She feels parents should be aware that help is available through open communication and the Gulf Coast Women's Center.

"My 16-year-old daughter was assaulted recently in a hallway of one of our local high schools. The attack happened during regular school hours in an empty hallway of the junior high section of the school, and the assailant was my daughter's boyfriend.

"Since my daughter was attacked, and through the wonderful work of the counselors at the Gulf Coast Women's Center, we are both learning more each day regarding this grave problem facing our teenagers today, dating violence.

"These teen abusers are the very same people who later in life become wife, husband and child beaters.

"The circle of violence of these abusers and the victims is frightening, and most of the abusive teens have been victims themselves in their own homes.

"I believe we can help these abusive people through counseling and education.

"My goal is to open the eyes of parents and educators to this serious problem by teaching our teens to keep communication lines open at all times and by helping them understand the importance of getting involved and reporting violent acts against their peers witnessed anywhere.

"Right now the peer pressure is overwhelming to keep quiet about these acts of violence, especially when they involve friends dating other friends who are abusive.

"The victims blame themselves for the violent acts, while the abusers maintain an obsessive control over the victims.

"The kids remain silent because the circle of violence begins with a building up of anger, which culminates in the violent act, then the victim runs back into the arms of the abuser who has promised he or she will change and never be violent again. Then a "honeymoon phase" begins until the anger begins to build up again.

"And the circle of violence continues and continues... and our children remain silent because their abused friends have begged them not to tell anyone.

There is a desperate need to put an end to dating violence.

"Please talk to your teenagers about this problem and find out if the school officials in your county are willing to seek out professionals to speak to our junior and high school students.

"The next victim could be one of your own children."

The yellow light is on at the Capitol

The yellow light of caution was on at the Capitol when the Legislature came to town Jan. 2.

And that was good news. The voices of caution came from three different directions.

First, from Ed Beulow, chairman of the State Tax Commission:

"We are out of a rapid growth period in terms of General Fund revenue expansion."

Then, from the State Treasurer Marshall Bennett:

"While the state debt as a percentage of Federal Fund revenues is still below the 5 percent threshold that Wall Street considers a danger signal, our debt is growing. We need to be looking closely at the state debt."

And, from House Speaker Tim Ford:

"We should be cautious when we get into bond issues."

Words of caution are good news at the Capitol. And timely, too, when you consider these recent financial events.

— State bonded indebtedness doubled in the past four years — from $656 million in 1992 to $1.2 billion today.

— A $3 billion increase in total state spending in the past four years — from $4.5 million in 1992 to $7.5 billion in 1996.

— A 30 percent increase in General Fund expenditures in the past four years — from $2 billion to $2.6 billion.

— A substantial 16 percent increase in the sales tax three years ago to fund a major part of that increased spending.

The yellow light of caution is good news.

A red light — to stop the spending in its tracks — would be better.

Super Tuesday deadline moved

Secretary of State Eric Clark credits teamwork for the successful, "fast-track" passage of the first law of the 1996 Legislative session. The law, House Bill 148, moves the Super Tuesday candidate qualifying deadline to Jan. 26 from March 1. It was signed by Gov. Kirk Fordice Friday, Jan. 12.

"We've been met with a real spirit of teamwork on this," Clark said in a press conference. "I believe every vote counts, and this move will enable more people to exercise their right to vote on Super Tuesday."

The new law specifies Friday, Jan. 26 at 5 p.m. as the date on which prospective candidates for Congress, Senate and the presidency must qualify — 46 days before Super Tuesday. Previously, the qualifying deadline for the election was March 1, the date specified under a 1994 election law.

"Clearly the 1994 law — setting the March 1 qualifying date — did not address the special circumstances of Super Tuesday being held in March," Clark said. "Now, circuit clerks and party officials will have ample time to prepare absentee ballots so that more people can vote."

If the March 1 qualifying deadline had prevailed, many Mississippians, including those in the military and those working out of state, would not have had access to absentee ballots.

After bringing the problem to the attention of the legislature, Clark said he was met with cooperation from the leadership of both houses and the Governor's and Attorney General's offices.

"All of us hope the events of this week and the teamwork it shows are indicators of the way we will all work together during the next four years," Clark said.

Fordice wants 'parent power'

The Kirk Fordice Administration has not shown its hand yet on its talked-about legislative proposals to shake up the state public school system and install its version of "parent power" and more local control of the schools.

Early indications from legislative sources are that the Fordice people will not push immediately for enactment of a school voucher system, something the governor has previously advocated.

But the administration's legislative agenda is expected to give priority to some of the key elements of what Fordice calls his "PRIME" education plan. Expected to be pushed first is the administration's idea of giving a small band of parents the power to organize charter schools, over which parents would evidently have control of curriculum and selection of teachers, all of it to be paid for out of public funds.

Of course, establishment of the charter schools would necessitate providing for them all of the related services such as school transportation, cafeterias, libraries, and the like.

The charter school scheme doesn't resonate very well with state Sen. Grey Ferris (D-Vicksburg), the Senate Education chairman, who spent years in the upbuilding of his excellent hometown schools, even before he got into politics. Ferris, like other key public education advocates in the Legislature, is very skeptical of the PRIME concept as a threat to diluting the ability to fund education.

The idea of a small group of parents banding together to organize schools to suit their own needs, he says, "could mean a proliferation of small schools in any district."

In a number of school districts, Ferris said, "we already have too many small schools that can't offer the full range of courses in the sciences, or languages or offer honors courses to prepare our children to be competitive, not only in this state but in the rest of the country."

Mississippi spends less per pupil than any state in the union, Ferris emphasized. "Yet, we have some remarkable schools," he declared. "Anyone who denigrates the efforts of the many dedicated teachers and administrators in our school system do a disservice to the children of this state."

He took issue with those who are critical of the state board of Education and the Department of Education for their oversight of public school district around the state. The board and department, he said, "are there to assist school districts that are in need of assistance," whether it be in the area of finance, curriculum or management.

"There's no doubt that some districts in our state are at risk, and the Department of Education has played a very responsible role," he said. North Panoia's current fiscal woes are a case in point where the Department of Education is coming to its assistance to solve the district's problems.

Like Ferris, his counterpart in the House, Rep. Billy McCoy (D-Rienzi), the House Education chairman, is apprehensive about the entire concept of Fordice's PRIME program, none of which has been introduced in specific legislation as yet.

The Fordice student voucher idea had been brought up, he said, at a meeting he had with a Christian Coalition group recently, and he told them straight out he didn't think well of installing a voucher system. Such a system would create all sorts of new problems that many supporters of the idea have not considered, McCoy said. "What about transportation? For instance," he asked. "What about parents expecting their children to go to another school with a voucher to be provided with transportation?"

His grave concern, also would be the welfare of students left at an inferior school after other students with vouchers moved to a better school in the area. "I think the courts would have something to say about that," McCoy declared.

Conceivably, a large number of students armed with vouchers could invade a superior school in the area and totally destabilize that school's operation.

Some have observed that under a voucher system, it is also possible that busloads of inner-city children armed with vouchers could be bussed by interest groups out to suburban, elite schools, much to the chagrin of the latter.

Uppermost, the House Education leader said, his concern is to provide all children of Mississippi a stable classroom, with decent equipment, a quality teacher, and a safe environment.

Through long years of efforts by education supporters (his father, one of those) the state has guaranteed a solid foundation for public education and given equal opportunity for all children to get a good education, McCoy declared.

Key building blocks in public education cited by McCoy, have been the enactment of the Minimum Foundation Education Program in 1953-54, the 1982 Education Reform Act, the Equity Funding Act in the late 1980s, and the Enhancement Act of 1992. Each community, he said can build upon the minimum support which they have been provided, to provide supplemental funding for programs to enrich their schools.

Now, we're very apprehensive of any notion (such as PRIME, vouchers, etc.) which sets aside large sums of public money for the elite few," McCoy added.

In Ferris and McCoy, Mississippi has two public servants with a longtime, deep interest and perspective for public education needs, and the ability of the state to meet those needs. They are not about to toss the baby out with the bath water because of some preconceived notion that public schools aren't working as they would like.

Book examines state's past

A University of Southern Mississippi historian's new book examines the ideas that underlie the political behavior of Mississippians during the late 19th century.

Dr. Bradley Bond, assistant professor of history at USM, wrote Political Culture in the Nineteenth-Century South: Mississippi, 1830-1900 as a dual study of politics and the ideas that often shaped political action in the state during those years.

Bond, who joined the USM
faculty last fall, said the study of 19th century political and intellectual history also provides a "look at the way people in that era defined themselves."

"I don't think you can really separate intellectual history and political history because I believe ideas are what underlie political action - whether it is participating in a rally or running for political office," Bond said. "The book is a look at the ideas that undergird the political behavior of the time."

Bond divided his research into three periods: antebellum times, the Civil War years and the post-war era. He found though opinions differed among Mississippians on politics, economics and societal issues, one factor remained constant:
racial identity.

In the antebellum period, for example, Bond said Mississippians were a "curious" blend of those who considered themselves pioneers, almost isolated from the rest of the world and blazing new trails, and those who felt they were well-connected capitalists in tune with the changing marketplaces throughout the world.

However, Bond said research shows those differences were
"smoothed over by the belief that slavery holds together white society." Racial identity was also part of the ideological fabric in Mississippi during the Civil War and afterward in the Reconstruction period, Bond said.

Bond said because the book is written in narrative style, it may appeal to lay readers as well as scholars.

Political Culture in the Nineteenth-Century South: Mississippi, 1830-90 was published by the Louisiana State University Press. The book sells for $35 and is available at the Hub Bookstore on the USM campus.

Learn to control explosive temper

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development
Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

"I have a terrible temper. When I lose control, I do and say things that I have to pay for later. What can I do to stop this?"

You've taken the first step — realizing you have a problem that you need and want to solve.

Many people have tried a variety of things, some have worked and some haven't. You will have to find the one(s) that work for you.

Get to know yourself well enough to recognize where your emotions are leading you. Be aware of the signs that say you're getting close to "losing it." Some people feel their heart rate increasing. Others report feeling their face become flushed or know that they've started clenching their teeth or hands.

Your signs may be different from all of these, but in all probability, there are distinct clues that you're losing control. When you realize your anger is taking over, immediately do something.

Turning away and putting distance between yourself and the source of your anger is a good technique.

This gives you and the other person a cooling off period. If you can't leave physically, take yourself somewhere else mentally.

You've heard people recommending counting to 10. That helps if you give your attention to the counting rather than to what's making you angry. Ten may be too small a number — you may have to begin with 100 and count backward to keep your attention.

TEEN TALK

Attitude makes all the difference in everything we do. By changing your attitude toward a person or event, you can defuse anger.

For example, if your attitude toward someone's lateness is that they have been deliberately late just to aggravate you, then you feel justifiably angry. On the other hand, if your attitude is that the person is caring but needs to get better organized, you may not take the lateness personally and have no need for anger.

Anger is not wrong any more than any other emotion is wrong. How you deal with it is what matters.

"What is the best kind of diet?"

The advice I read from nutritionists has convinced me that the best diet for adults is one in which we eat a wide variety of foods, stressing low salt, low fat and low sugar.

Participants sought for leadership studies

Applications are now being accepted by the University of Southern Mississippi's Center for Gifted Studies for a summer Leadership Studies program for children in grades 6-11.

Applications for the June 16-21 program must be turned in by March 31. Tuition costs cover room, board, recreational activities and limited accident insurance. Applicants must have a desire to enhance their leadership skills and abilities, plus a recommendation from officials at the school they attend.

First-time participants in the program offered this summer take Leadership I, which covers basic leadership skills — including written and oral communication, group dynamics, problem-solving, planning, personal skills and decision-making.

Leadership II, offered to second-year students, builds on the principles taught in the first course. Areas taught include psychology of leadership, assertiveness training and situational leadership.

Third-year students, taking Leadership III, focus on legal aspects of leadership, developing personal power and leadership for the future.

For applications or additional information, contact the Center for Gifted Studies, University of Southern Mississippi, Box 8207, Hattiesburg, MS 39406-8207, or call (601) 266-5236.

If your doctor has recommended that you lose weight for health reasons, I suggest consulting with a licensed dietician or licensed nutritionist.

They can recommend an eating plan that will be nutritionally sound. With your doctor's permission, begin a regular exercise plan to go along with the diet. There are many benefits to regular exercise beyond helping you lose weight and keep it off.

I wanted to concentrate my focus on the positives of diet and nutrition, but you should also be aware that fad diets don't work except in the short term and can be harmful to your health. Be good to yourself and treat yourself to good health.

If you have questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Esher nominated

Scott Esher, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Esher of Waveland, has been nominated for a 1996 Four-Year Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC) Scholarship. The competition for an NROTC scholarship is extremely rigorous, involving many of the finest students in the country. Esher has chosen Georgia Institute of Technology as his first choice school to pursue this opportunity.

EYE CARE

by Allen J. Koskan, M.D.

"SECOND" THOUGHTS

When the clouding of the lens known as cataract first appears, a change in the affected person's eyeglass prescription may be all that is needed to improve vision. Those so affected should also take note of the fact that there is a stage during the development of the cataract during which presbyopic (farsighted) patients perceive an improvement in their near vision. This phenomenon, known as "second sight," occurs as a result of the swelling of the lens nucleus. This serves to alter the angle of refraction to focus light more precisely on the retina. However, as the cataract progresses, second sight is lost and both near and distant vision deteriorate. At this point, of course, changes in eyeglass prescriptions are no longer effective in improving vision and the cataract patient must make a determination if his or her vision is impaired to the extent that cataract surgery is a consideration.

Early detection of vision problems is crucial to a successful treatment program. KOSKAN EYE CLINIC uses the latest medical advances to diagnose and treat vision problems such as cataracts and glaucoma. Laser surgery is performed in the office with minimal discomfort. January 21-27 is National Glaucoma Awareness Week. KOSKAN EYE CLINIC will be providing FREE GLAUCOMA SCREENINGS January 21. Contact us at 466-5201 for location and information. Our eye health exams include thorough inspection of the internal and external parts of the eyes and glaucoma and cataract screening. Our office is conveniently located at Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis, MS.

Traffic law enforcement has many spin-off benefits

May motorists who've been cited for traffic violations have asked why police are concerned with such violations in the light of today's serious crime problems. The Mississippi Division of Public Safety Planning has some eye-opening answers to this question.

"Certainly, solving major crimes is a high priority for law

USM junior wins scholarship

A University of Southern Mississippi student from Brandon will study in London this summer as the first-ever USM recipient of a scholarship from the International Textile and Apparel Association.

"I'm really excited about it," said Sharon Netto, a junior fashion merchandising and apparel studies major.

The $5,000 London Summer Study Scholarship will allow Netto to take four classes in fashion merchandising at the American College in London during June and July. Netto was selected based on her application, which detailed her career goals and community service.

Netto, 46, worked for South Central Bell for 20 years before returning to school. Throughout her phone company career, she performed seamstress work as a sideline, always wanting to study the craft more seriously.

"I've always sewn, and I've always loved it," she said.

Netto is the mother of Tracey, Terry and Loren Netto. She is the daughter of Leroy A. Williams of Bay St. Louis.

AT USM, she's a member of the Student Association of Family and Consumer Sciences and Kappa Omicron Nu, an honor society in the School of Family and Consumer Sciences.

enforcement agencies," said Commissioner of Public Safety Jim Ingram, "but traffic law enforcement also is important because it can be effective in both reducing motor vehicle crashes and combating crime."

Donald O'Carin, Public Safety Planning's executive director and governor's representative for highway safety, noted that "each year, more than 750 individuals are killed and hundreds more seriously injured on Mississippi roadways."

Many motor vehicle crashes are caused by traffic law violations such as driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs, speeding, reckless driving, failing to yield the right-of-way or disregarding traffic signals.

Enforcing traffic laws often stops violators before they cause a crash, or it can act as a deterrent to the violations. A fact that might surprise many Mississippians is, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the number of people killed each year in motor vehicle crashes in the United States is almost twice the number murdered.

"The less obvious importance of enforcing traffic laws," he said, "is that alert law enforcement officers enforcing traffic laws produce many spin-off benefits. In our increasingly mobile society, motor vehicles often are used to facilitate the commission of a crime."

Criminals typically arrive and leave in vehicles. Sex offenders in motor vehicles prey on children, and illicit drugs travel our highways from ports of entry to communities of all sizes.

"We hear again and again about drug couriers being intercepted or other criminals being apprehended during routine traffic stops," O'Carin noted.

"More and more traffic officers are being trained to recognize other violations by observing the driver's demeanor, conversational responses, lack of knowledge about the vehicle or other factors."

"Also," he said, "minor right-of-way disputes in traffic are increasingly resolved with firearms or beatings, and innocent motorists are victims of carjackings and tourist robberies that could be deterred by an increased presence of traffic officers."

A University of Maryland study indicates that the higher the level of traffic law enforcement, the lower the level of robbery and that aggressive traffic law enforcement creates a broad general effect of crime deterrence.

The study found that many crimes, such as robbery, rape, burglary, aggravated assault and automobile theft can be deterred by a visible law enforcement presence.

"Perhaps it would be some consolation to a motorist cited for a traffic violation," O'Carin said, "to realize that the same officer writing the ticket may previously have prevented a fatal crash by removing an impaired driver from the roadway, intercepted a shipment of illicit drugs or recovered a stolen vehicle... all because of routine traffic stops."

Domestic violence counseling

The Gulf Coast Women's Center will provide counseling and outreach services for victims of domestic and sexual assault on Wednesday, Jan. 24 at the Family and Youth Court/Justice Court. The center also provides shelter for families involved in domestic violence or is homeless due to domestic violence.

For information, contact Gwendolyn L. Beck at 1-800-800-1396.

The GCWC is a United Way agency providing free and confidential services to residents of Hancock County.

Also, you may call and schedule an appointment, if you are not able to meet with the center on Wednesday or if there is a crisis situation that demands immediate attention or resolution. Please call, and we will respond immediately or as the situation warrants.

The GCWC would also like to thank the many residents of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Diamondhead for their generous contributions, volunteer hours and overwhelming generosity during the holiday season. At the beginning of the holiday season, the GCWC had an unscheduled, untimely, emergency move from the old shelter (where we had been located for over 16 years). The residents and staff have now settled into another building, which will be our home until the new shelter is built.

Parent Center Workshop

Hancock North Central Elementary will host a Parent Center Workshop open to the public entitled "Warning Signs and Symptoms of a Troubled Child."

The workshop will be presented by NorthShore Psychiatric Hospital counselors Monday, Jan. 22, 9-10 a.m.

Gas

The Coast Guard called Department of Pollution Control officials who determined the leak could be dangerous. Koch had divers in the water between 1:30 and 2 p.m. Saturday to evaluate the situation.

They determined that a boat anchor made about a six-inch gash in the joint of the pipeline, causing the rupture. The pipeline is submerged in about 10 to 12 feet of water, and was laid in 1948, Vanney said.

By 10 p.m., Koch suggested a tentative fix would be to make a saddle type clamp repair to the pipe underwater.

But, early Sunday morning, Vanney said, "after further investigation, it was determined this was not the best fix. The split had worsened, and they still didn't know how big it was." It was decided a section of the pipe would have to be removed and replaced, but we didn't want to lose pressure to the whole city."

By 10 a.m. Sunday, Vanney said Zimmerman determined that crews needed to reduce pressure on the line, and ordered service to Alcan Cable, the city's largest user of natural gas, shut off.

At first, the plan was to find an alternate gas source, and tie into Waveland's lines to keep gas flowing into Bay St. Louis while Koch repaired its line.

Early Monday, public works employees began notifying area schools, businesses and residences that service might be disrupted from 12 to 24 hours, Vanney said.

Vanney said he arrived on the scene about noon Monday, but the plan to tie into Waveland's lines was abandoned about 3 p.m. Monday.

Instead, Vanney said Zimmerman and Koch officials devised another scheme. Koch located a tanker truck carrying 10,500 gallons of liquid natural gas in Trussville, Ala., near Birmingham, and ordered it dispatched to Bay St. Louis. It arrived about 11 p.m. Monday night. Koch also found a vaporizer truck in nearby Slidell, and it was sent to Bay St. Louis.

Vanney explained the vaporizer compresses the liquid gas, by allowing it to heat up, and form a vapor, so it can flow through distribution lines.

The connection was made at the city's main gas intake station at Ulman Street, a little after 11 p.m. Monday, and by 1 a.m. Tuesday, Alcan was back on line, and pressure to the city was normal, Vanney said.

The rupture was supposed to be repaired by midnight Tuesday, but Vanney said a special compression-type fitting had to be used to plug the hole, causing another delay.

Vanney said preparation was being made for the city to go ahead and tie in with Waveland sometime Wednesday, but Koch officials said the repairs were completed by 11:15 a.m. Wednesday, and the distribution system was returned to normal. Vanney said Koch was making the repairs at its own expense. He said it would be difficult to determine who or what might have caused the rupture in the pipeline.

Officials at Koch's corporate headquarters in Wichita, Kan., issued a brief press release Tuesday, saying efforts were being made to repair the line "as soon as possible."

Public Affairs Director Kim Carraway said, "The preliminary investigation had found that a boat anchor was wrapped around the line which caused the damage."

Vanney speculates the anchor was wedged into the pipeline "for quite some time" because it had oysters growing on it.

He said natural wave action or underwater motion from a large barge or vessel might have caused it to penetrate the thick pipeline.

Vanney had high praise for city public works employees, fire and police department officials and Koch repair crews who handled the crisis.

"They all put in some long hours," Vanney said. "The office staff kept communications up with crews in the field, and handled calls from concerned customers. And, Koch employees handled the situation expertly," Vanney said.

He said the city was fortunate that the break occurred when the weather was mild, and there was no need to shut down service to customers.

the best officers here," Varnell said. "He will be as good or better than any of our other officers. It takes quite a man to come back."

City attorneys said since Prendergast's record was expunged, the city had no legal reason not to rehire him. Varnell said Prendergast had been working as a security officer at Casino Magic.

Waveland's force is comprised of 12 patrol officers, three supervisors, one narcotics investigator and two criminal investigators.

Explore interests before making career decisions

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development
Cooperative Extension Service

"I'm just a sophomore in high school, but my counselors and teachers are pressuring me to decide everything about my future. They want to know where I want to go to college, how I will pay for it, what I want to major in, what my ideal job would be and my life goals for the next 10 years."

"I don't think I'm ready to make all of those decisions just yet. I don't think I know enough about majors and careers to decide right now. How can I get them to stop pressuring me so much?"

Tell them you are carefully researching your options so you can make an informed decision. That should reassure them that these questions are on your mind and you're not wandering around out in "la-la land."

The next step to take is to give yourself permission not to have all of your life decisions made at this time. Recognize that your interests may change often during your high school years.

Understand that all of your experiences in living will provide clues to the puzzle of what you will do with the rest of your life. Be observant but not panicked.

It might be enlightening to start keeping a list of experiences that are especially interesting this year, both in and out of school. Do the same thing for your junior year.

At the beginning of your senior year, look back over the lists and see how some of your interests have changed completely while others keep showing up. That may provide some helpful career clues.

Enjoy finding the pieces and putting together this very important puzzle.

"There are some guys at my school who act differently than the rest. They don't like sports and aren't into acting loud and crazy. They're art and music freaks and dress differently from the regular guys. Some of the kids are saying they're gay and won't have anything to do with them because of that."

"I sit next to one of them in a class, and he seems like an OK person to me even though he does seem different. Until he makes a pass at me, I don't see why I shouldn't treat him like anyone else. But I'm worried the other kids will say I must be gay if I'm seen with him. What should I do?"

I'm with you — you certainly can't always judge a book by its cover. Different doesn't always have to be bad. What's inside a person is far more important than what appears on the outside.

That sounds like it would come from "a parent's book of favorite lectures to be given to kids," but the bottom line is that each is true.

I won't brush off your concern about being labeled "gay" if you hang out together. You're probably exactly right.

Your decision has to be whether it's more important to you to treat this guy as you would anyone else and risk the talk or steer clear of the possibility of a new friend and whatever baggage that brings with it. Good luck.

If you have any questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

NAACP 'Mother of the Year'

STORY AND PHOTOS BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

The NAACP president of the state conference, Beatrice Branch, said blacks must prepare themselves educationally, economically, politically and socially for the 21st century.

Branch addressed Hancock County's black leaders at the annual NAACP 15th Supper Theatre Mother of the Year Program held at Gulfside Assembly in Waveland.

This year's theme was, "Passing the Torch, Igniting the Vision of a New Generation."

Bay St. Louis resident Paula Fairconnetue, representing St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church, was selected Mother of the Year. Runnerup was Bobbie Scott of Waveland, representing Mount Chapel Baptist Church in Waveland.

Fairconnetue is the wife of Nathaniel Fairconnetue and mother of one son, Nathaniel Jr., a sixth grader at Bay Catholic Elementary; two daughters, Natalie, a senior and Nadia, a junior, both at Bay High School.

Scott is the wife of Joseph Scott of Waveland. She is the mother of two children; Rhonda Young, Huntsville, Ala. and Sean Young, Moline, Ill.; and four stepchildren.

Rev. L. E. Morris of Waveland was honored with the Martin Luther King Award. Rev. Morris is pastor of the New Home Missionary Church, Gautier.

The Ethel Weaver Award was accepted by Catherine Ishem for her daughter, Marilyn Smith of Bay St. Louis.

The state NAACP leader stressed the importance of education for children.

"Parents should invest in a computer for their children instead of VCRs, televisions and telephones in each of their rooms. Parents must also monitor what their children view on television," Branch said.

She encouraged parents to keep their children abreast of the current events in this country by viewing CNN and C-SPAN.

Branch added, "My generation is on the verge of leaving our children the legacy of a world worse off than the one we inherited.

We must show our children that we have a vision."

On the social issues, she said, "One million teenagers become pregnant each year. It is not right that we have 70 percent single-parent families. No wonder we have the problems we do today."

In commenting on fathers, Branch said, "When you father a child, you need to take on the responsibility of raising that child."

One of the state leader's primary goals is to establish an investment club for blacks in every county in Mississippi in 1996.

"Black churches in America have $10 billion, yes $10 billion deposited in banks, and yet 90 percent of our people, when they apply for a loan, they do not get one. As long as you are economically dependent on someone else, you will never be free," she said.

"Blacks must become organized in their communities and make sure every eligible person is registered and votes, and all elected officials, black and white, must be held accountable," Branch said.

2B-THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, 1996

BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

Perhaps a notebook and a pen would be more appropriate than shoulder pads and helmets for the Green Bay Packers when they next visit Texas Stadium, especially if it's in January.

For the third straight year, the Packers were reduced to mere students by a Dallas team which is a proven maestro of championships. The Cowboys dashed Green Bay's hopes of a berth in Super Bowl XXX with a sound 38-27 defeat of the Pack in the NFC Championship Game on Sunday.

For Brett Favre and his Packers teammates, the loss was another frustrating lecture in an arena that has to seem more like a classroom where they keep getting their hands slapped.

"We keep coming down here and getting lessons," said Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren. "I'm tired of lessons."

"I'm drained and I feel bad for the guys."

Favre agreed it was a "tough lesson," but was philosophical in defeat.

"Twenty-nine teams go home with a loss after the last game of their season," said Favre, a graduate of Hancock North Central High School.

"I'm just upset that it had to end this way," he said. "It has been a stepladder for us. We had some great wins, some tough losses."

"This is just one of those tough losses."

The loss was a cruel epilogue to Favre's fairy-tale year, a season in which he guided the Packers to their first division title in over 20 years and first NFC title appearance in 30. The highlight of his season came when he was named the league's MVP, the lowlight on an unseasonably warm January afternoon in Dallas.

Favre appeared rattled in the early going against the Cowboys, missing badly on his first six attempts. All were overthrown.

The only early completion was to Dallas defensive end Leon Lett, whose interception of a Packer screen pass led to the Cowboys jumping to an early 14-3 lead.

"We had the screen set up," Favre explained. "(Lett) was supposed to be cut. We've run that play a million times."

Unnerved, however, the gritty Favre answered with a 73-yard strike to Robert Brooks to pull the Pack to within 14-10. Early in the second quarter, Favre threw a 24-yard touchdown pass to Keith Jackson to give the Pack a 17-14 lead, leaving the 65,000 in Texas Stadium stunned by the turnaround.

"They got up, but I wasn't worried," Favre said. "We have been here before, and I knew we could come back. We didn't panic."

"We came back and that's where we are different than in the past."

More poised, yes, NFC champs no. The Cowboys proved in the fourth quarter why the Vince Lombardi trophy will be added to their trophy case for the third time in four years.

The Pack held a 27-24 lead going into the fourth quarter, but Emmitt Smith's five-yard run with 12 minutes remaining put Dallas up for good. Minutes later, the outcome was finalized when Larry Brown intercepted a Favre pass at the Cowboy 20-yard line and returned it to the 48.

Two plays later, Smith had Dallas packing for Tempe, Ariz., and the Super Bowl with a 16-yard scoring run.

"I saw Mark Ingram looking at me," said Favre, who was forced out of the pocket on the interception.

"He was the primary receiver, but he was looking at me," he added. "I thought he was going to stop. (Brown) had his back turned when I threw the ball. Then he turned around and made the play."

"I'm still sure we would have come away with points on the drive were it not for that interception."

Smith's game-clinching run

A painful lesson

also provided redemption for beleaguered Dallas coach Barry Switzer. Only in Dallas, working for egotistical Jerry Jones, could a coach's job be in jeopardy for losing four games. That, and, of course, a nasty relationship with your star quarterback.

Amazing what a win can do. The jubilant Cowboys sounded as syrupy as the Brady Bunch following the Cowboys' third NFC title in four years, the first under Switzer.

"(Switzer) wants this Super Bowl more than anybody and he has done everything to get to be a part of a Super Bowl game," Jones said. "I am proud of him and what he has done over the past two years."

Wide receiver Michael Irvin said Switzer "did a great thing and let his coaches coach. The coaches' records speak for themselves."

Green Bay's off-season will ring familiar, replaying another Dallas nightmare. Granted, the Packers advanced further than most predicted, but that does little to diminish the pain.

"It hurts because we were so close," Packer tight end Mark Chumra said. "A lot of guys matured this year. We get over this, we'll bounce back next year."

Green Bay defensive lineman Reggie White said before he retires, the Packers "will win a championship."

"I'm not going to take anything away from our team and the season we've had," White said. "This team is going to get better."

Favre's season was a Cinderella ride, one that carried Hancock County in its carriage. It was a breakthrough season for the Kiln resident, who proved he belongs among the league's elite.

But as San Francisco quarterback Steven Young can attest to, a quarterback's greatness is measured in Super Bowls, not individual honors.

"I'd like to think that next year will be the Super Bowl," Favre admitted.

First, the Packers have to get through Dallas.

Snapper catch increased

The Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council voted to set the 1996 red snapper total allowable catch (TAC) at 9.12 million pounds, with 4.47 million pounds (49 percent of TAC) allocated to the recreational sector and 4.65 million pounds (51 percent of TAC) allocated to the commercial quota. This TAC is within the allowable biological catch range of 6 to 10 million pounds that was recommended by the Council's Reef Fish Stock Assessment Panel.

A National Marine Fisheries Service bag and size limit analysis projects that the recreational sector will stay within the proposed 1996 allocation under the existing 5-fish bag and 15-inch size limits. As a result the Council is proposing no change to the recreational bag and size limits in 1996.

Castro visits St. Stanislaus

Joseph Castro, 1933 graduate of St. Stanislaus, was on campus at the beginning of the year with his 18-year-old grandson Juan Carlos. The two were visiting the coastal area from San Jose, Costa Rica.

Castro seemed to enjoy strolling around campus absorbing all of the new ambience Stanislaus has to offer.

He told great stories of the beginning of the boxing team in the old gym. He made it sound like grand times of some true hard-hitting leather pushers.

Castro said being on campus took him back some 60 years. He also spoke of making the actual bricks over the course of a two-year period and laying the bricks in place to form what is now the wall surrounding the football-soccer stadium.

Castro reminisced over the knowledge and friends he made at Stanislaus in the years of the Depression. He remembered Brother Peter taking a group of boarders over one of the holiday breaks to the "newly" constructed Louisiana State Capitol, and getting the opportunity to sit in Gov. Huey P. Long's chair, quite a big deal at the time when "every man was a king."

Just as he was quoted as a graduating senior in the final issue of The Rock-A-Chaw newspaper of the 1932-1933 academic year — "Ambitions — To lead revolutions in Costa Rica," ... he did.

He said in the late 40s, some 15 years after graduation, he was able to command some revolutions in Costa Rica in opposition to the realm of Communism.

However, the Lady Tigers cruised away with the win the second half as the Lady Tide was held to just 15 second half points. Valerie Christmas scored 12 points to lead the Lady Tigers while Shannon Baker and Lisa Yarborough each scored 10 points. Alicia Gavagnie grabbed 11 rebounds to go with her six points and Baker dished out six assists. The Lady Tigers improve to 16-3 overall and 6-1 in the division. The boys fell to the Maroon Tide 50-39. The Tide was up 27-17 at halftime and that proved to be the margin of victory for the Tide. Mark Price led the Tigers with 14 points as Bay High fell to 2-18 overall.

Lady Pirates win in 4 OT

The Lady Pirates and the Bulldogs were deadlocked at 51-51 after regulation play ended. Both teams did not score in the first overtime period. During the second and third overtime periods each team managed just two points. The final overtime period saw the Lady Pirates outscore the Lady Bulldogs 6-1 to make the final score 61-56. Mandy Theobald led the Lady Pirates with 20 points on four three-pointers. Michelle Bowser added 19 points while Jenny Lucas scored 14 points and dished out six assists. The Lady Pirates upped their record to 13-9 overall and 3-3 in the division. The Pirates defeated the Bulldogs 50-47 on Jan. 12. Pass Christian took the lead in the first period 11-7 and increased the lead to 30-19 by halftime. The Bulldogs came back and made a game of the contest in the second half. Vancleave outscored the Pirates 28-20 in the second half but the lead was too much to overcome for the Bulldogs. Eddie Riley led the Pirates with 13 points and five assists. Wesley Cook added nine points and seven rebounds. The Pirates improved their record to 7-15 overall and 3-3 in the division.

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaw basketball team battled Picayune in the first meeting of the year to an overtime game that the Rocks won 53-52. This time the ending wasn't as sweet. ## Red snapper emergency action

The National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) is in the process of issuing an emergency interim rule, as requested by the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council, effective Jan. 1 through March 31 for the Gulf of Mexico Commercial red snapper fishery. The emergency interim rule would:

- delay reopening of the 1996 commercial red snapper fishing period from Jan. 1 to Feb. 1;
- release one million pounds of the 1996 quota for the fishery reopening on Feb. 1; and
- continue the red snapper endorsement and trip limit provisions.

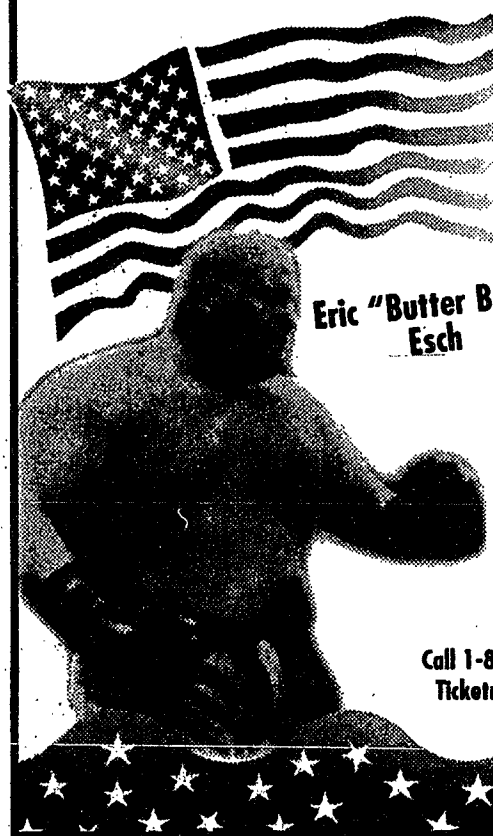

Issuance of the rule is pending completion of the formal agency clearance procedures. The same trip limits used in 1995 (up to 2,000 pounds for permitted vessels with endorsements, and 200 pounds for other permitted reef fish vessels) will apply. The 1996 commercial red snapper fishery will reopen on 12:01 a.m., Feb. 1, under a 15-minute size limit. Starting Jan. 1, until the commercial fishery opens on Feb. 1, permitted reef fish vessels must abide by bag and possession limits and the prohibition on sale, no matter where the red snapper is harvested or possessed, including state waters.

BACKACHE.

The little pain that lasts and lasts.

Back pain often starts small. Sometimes it disappears; usually it returns; often it gets worse. If left untreated, back pain can linger for years as a nagging reminder that all is not well.

Your job may be the culprit; you may sit all day hunched over a desk; you may lift heavy objects; you may be constantly bending over, caring for children. These are common causes of misaligned vertebrae of the spine and may be good reasons why you have back pain.

And because the spine is a complex system which is connected to other areas of the body, misaligned vertebrae in the spine can also be the reason for tension, stiffness, fatigue and more specifically back pain and headaches.

Our doctors at HODA CHIROPRACTIC CLINICS are specialists in back care. They can restore spinal vertebrae to their proper position, relieving pain and avoiding further complications.

Make this the last morning your back is left untreated. See Dr. Desmond W. Hoda.

Teacher workshop set

Two free workshops Jan. 27 and March 2 will help teachers better prepare students to take part in this year's JASON project, which begins April 15 at the J. L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium.

"JASON VII: Adapting to a Changing Sea" will air five times daily at MEC&A from April 15-26. MEC&A is the Biloxi campus of the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, which is administered by the University of Southern Mississippi.

The JASON project provides school-age students with a live, interactive educational experience, this year focusing on the underwater world in southern Florida. Using satellite communication systems, the broadcast goes to nearly 30 different sites worldwide, including MEC&A. Participants in each location have an opportunity to participate in science as it happens during five broadcasts daily at each site.

"Adapting to a Changing Sea" focuses on life at the edge of the sea as it is now and will be in the future. Participants will join in an investigation of several interconnected shallow-water habitats in southern Florida—the Everglades, Florida Bay, Florida Keys and relic reefs—and the stresses placed upon them.

Dr. Robert Ballard again will lead students in their 1996 JASON expedition.

Teacher training workshops enable teachers interested in bringing students to any of the JASON broadcasts to learn about the project in advance and receive training in how to prepare students to participate and prepare for the broadcast. Two workshops will be held each day: from 8 a.m. to noon and again from 1-5 p.m. The cost of the workshop is $15, which includes lunch and a curriculum packet that helps with lesson plans and other pre-JASON preparation.

For information or to register for any of the workshops, contact MEC&A at (601) 374-5550.

Star sixth graders

The St. Stanislaus College Prep Star Sixth Graders for the first semester are Joseph Sando, son of Joseph Sando of New Orleans, and Tim Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Kennedy Sr. of Biloxi. Sando and Kennedy were chosen by a vote of the sixth grade teachers. The award recognizes the students' academic success, attitude and effort.

USM to offer China program

The University of Southern Mississippi will launch a new study-abroad program in China next May.

Participants will have an opportunity to earn four semester hours of credit while studying in the world's most populous country in May 1996 through a new study-abroad program to be offered by USM's College of International and Continuing Education.

The addition of Chinese Culture and History to the lineup of international study programs at USM brings the total number of overseas opportunities available through the college to 19, said Dr. Tim Hudson, dean of the College of International and Continuing Education. The first session is planned for May 11-June 2 and will be led by Dr. Youli Sun, a native of China and a USM associate professor of history.

"We're delighted to add China to our growing list of credit-abroad opportunities," Hudson said. "There is certainly no way to overstate the importance of China in today's global community. I am especially pleased that at USM we have someone with Dr. Sun's knowledge and enthusiasm to lead this effort."

Students will fly to Beijing and be housed in a local western-style hotel. The cost of the program for undergraduates is $2,499 and that includes roundtrip airfare, tuition, accommodations and all transportation associated with the program.

Sun predicted information presented during the program would contribute to a better understanding of China and its place in the world.

"We plan to visit the key cultural and historical monuments of China—places such as the Imperial Palaces and the Great Wall—in an effort to explore China's past and to understand its present transformation," Sun said.

Lectures will be delivered in English by scholars, government officials and media experts, he said. The focus of the seminar lectures will be on "the changing nature of U.S.-China relations," Sun said.

For more information on Chinese Culture and History or any other study-abroad program available through USM, contact the College of International and Continuing Education, Box 10047, Hattiesburg, MS 39406-0047, or phone (601) 266-4344.

Sea Camp registration

Pre-registration is underway for the 1996 sessions of Project Marine Discovery Sea Camp at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory's J. L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium in Biloxi.

Seven one-week sessions, conducted from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. daily, are scheduled for children ages 6-12—June 3-7, June 10-14, June 17-21, June 24-28, July 8-21, July 15-19, and July 22-26. The June 17-21, June 24-28 and July 8-12 sessions will be open to 13- and 14-year-olds as well.

Additionally, the Early Childhood Sea Camp initiated last year for children 4-5 will be expanded this summer and offered during the same seven weeks. Sessions for the preschoolers are scheduled from 8-11 a.m. each day.

A charge of $125 for ages 9-12 and $110 for ages 6-8 covers instructional costs and materials, transportation and admission fees. Campers provide their own lunches, snacks and drinks. Early Childhood Sea Camp's $60 fee includes a snack and T-shirt. Discounted rates are offered for three or more family members.

Last summer, 1,058 children from 27 states and Great Britain participated in Sea Camp. Because of the program's popularity with children from other areas, local parents are encouraged to register their children as soon as possible.

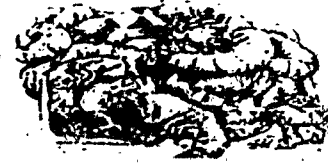

For information, call the Marine Education Center and Aquarium at 374-5550.
